At 9:45 a.m. this morning, [redacted] of the Tax Division of the Department, Extension 461, called [redacted] in my absence. He stated that former Attorney General McGranery instructed the Tax Division to work up a possible tax violation case against Albert Anastasia of New York City, who was formerly connected with Murder, Incorporated. Mr. McGranery had suggested the Tax Division keep in close touch with the FBI as possibly the Bureau in its inquiries in the waterfront investigation in New York might turn up something of interest on Anastasia which the Tax Division should know about.

[redacted] stated he was ready to submit his recommendations on the tax case now and wanted to talk to whoever in the Bureau was handling the waterfront matter insofar as Anastasia was concerned. [redacted] was advised a check would be made and he would be called.

[redacted] of the Investigative Division has been advised and is checking both in the Investigative Division, as well as with the Domestic Intelligence Division as to the status of the waterfront investigation insofar as Anastasia is concerned in order that pertinent data, if any, can be correlated and [redacted] of the Department given whatever advice deemed desirable.

ENCLOSURE

[REDACTED] b7D

On January 26, 1954 the New York Office verified that ANASTASIA was presently residing at 75 Bluff Road, Palisades, New Jersey. According to the Newark Office the telephone listed for the subject is Cliffside 6-2345. This telephone is listed under the subject's wife's maiden name BARNASI. [REDACTED] b7D

The New York Office is presently attempting to verify the date and place of birth as well as a record of service in the armed forces by the subject.

The "New York Times" for December 24, 1952 in an article on ALBERT ANASTASIA advised that the biography of the Brothers ANASTASIA began in Tropea, a fishing village in Calabria, Italy. The family name was ANASTASIO. The father of the ANASTASIA brothers was a railroad worker who died before World War I. By that time the family consisted of nine sons and three daughters. One son and two daughters died young. Another son emigrated to Australia. All the remaining boys had to go to work at an early age, on fishing boats, on freighters, on farms; one succeeded his father on the railroad.

~~ANASTASIA~~ ITALY
UMBERTO, later called ALBERT, now ~~fifty~~ years old, ~~ANASTASIA~~ ITALY, NY old, GUISEPPI (JOSEPH), now forty-seven, and TONY, now forty-five, shipped as deckhands on tramp steamers as children of eleven and twelve and knocked about the toughest ports in the world. At various times during the Twenties they jumped ship in the United States and merged into the gangs of longshoremen.

ALBERT, the oldest and most sinister of the ANASTASIA brothers got involved as far back as 1921 with the criminal element as he was among several men convicted of killing a fellow countryman in a quarrel. After months in the death house at Sing Sing Prison ANASTASIA won a retrial on a technical plea.

Meanwhile the State's best witness in this case was frightened back to Italy. On the retrial, ALBERT was acquitted. He was arrested for assault in 1923 but won a discharge by the same technique of intimidating witnesses. The same year he was convicted of possessing a gun. He served two years in the penitentiary.

In 1928 the subject was charged with another murder and in 1932 with stabbing a man to death with an ice-pick, but was dismissed for lack of evidence both times. In 1933 he was tried for the killing of a Brooklyn laundryman but the State's witnesses somehow changed their story and he got off again.

By this time the subject was rising to power on a Brooklyn waterfront. He became a pier superintendent and dominated six locals of the International Longshoremen's Association, A.F.L. In addition, ALBERT had become a friend, as he admitted in 1951 to the Kefauver Committee, of JOE ADONIS, WILLIE MORETTI, VITO GENOVESE and AUGI PISANO, important thugs ~~in NY~~.

With ADONIS and ABE RELES, ALBERT formed Murder, Inc., the famous racket syndicate that slew sixty-three men in the New York area between 1931 and 1940. RELES later testified that ALBERT was the fingerman and ordered all of the killings.

In 1939 PETER PANTO, the longshoreman who organized a rank-and-file revolt to rid the union of racketeers was strangled and his body was buried in a lime pit. RELES, accused of several other murders, told all to save his life. He implicated the subject in this and thirty more murders. Then RELES plunged to his death from his room in the Half Moon Hotel in Coney Island in 1941 and WILLIAM O'DWYER, then Brooklyn District Attorney, said his "perfect case" against ANASTASIA had collapsed.

Taking refuge in the Army in 1942 the subject hid out as technical sergeant training Army longshoremen at Indiantown Gap, Pennsylvania for the next two years.

Before he was discharged as over age in 1944 he took advantage of a law granting quick citizenship to servicemen. After he quit the waterfront and the rough stuff he began operating a dress factory in Hazleton, Pennsylvania. The subject bought a $75,000.00 yellow stucco house of phony Spanish style overlooking the Hudson at Fort Lee, New Jersey around the corner from the home of his old friend ADONIS.

There he lives behind a steel fence guarded by two dogs, and spurns subpoenas of the State Crime Commission. He has two Lincolns, his son goes to college, and he and his brothers have bought Mama ANASTASIA, now age 76, a home in Parghelia, Italy where the Federal Government has begun proceedings to denaturalize and deport him.

CRIMINAL ACTIVITIES

In the book entitled, "Murder, Inc." by SID FEDER and BURTON E. TORRES concerning the subject the following is reflected:

ALBERT ANASTASIA has been getting away with murder for thirty years now, and a lot of people have been helping him. Since 1920, three years after he jumped ship and smuggled his way into the United States, ANASTASIA has been close to some thirty assassinations with gun, icepick and strangling rope either in person or by direction.

The New York City Police Department has linked ANASTASIA to twenty different slayings. ALBERT ANASTASIA's only jail penalty was for carrying a gun in 1923. For five murders he was arrested, for two he was tried in a court of law, for one he even went to the death house, for the remainder he was discharged. His activity in Murder, Inc. left bodies all over America and after the formation of the syndicate underworld law decreed they could not murder without his approval.

According to police reports in connection with the kidnapping of ISIDOR JUFFE in 1932 for which JOE ADONIS was indicted the subject was recognized by JUFFE as being among his assailants in this kidnapping. The subject was never indicted or convicted for this crime.

The underlying reason behind the dismissal of this indictment in this case was, the three State witnesses in this case were found slain. Many newspaper articles refer to this crime; one in particular dated December 10, 1952 appeared in the "New York World Telegram-Sun."

[REDACTED] b2

On November 21, 1950 United States Attorney FRANKLIN J. PARKER, Eastern District of New York, issued a press release announcement that he was opening an all out inquiry into the activity of the subject with a ship repair concern. Reference was made to the Sancer Corporation which filed bankruptcy papers in Brooklyn Federal Court in 1937. The article emphasized the fact that ALBERT ANASTASIA resided in a $100,000.00 Spanish type mansion surrounded by a high wire fence fitted with spotlights.

The article recalled that ANASTASIA was a key witness in the Murder, Inc. investigation and that a murder charge naming him as the murderer of MORRIS DIAMOND, union official, was dismissed when the racketeering ABE RELES plunged to his death on November 12, 1941 from the fifth floor window of a Coney Island hotel. RELES, a member of Murder, Inc., had informed on the subject and others in the murder of some fifty-six persons in New York City and Sullivan County.

Considerable political capitol was made in the 1950 New York City election campaign of former Mayor WILLIAM O'DWYER's failure to prosecute ANASTASIA while O'DWYER was Brooklyn District Attorney. Allegations were made by Republican mayor candidate EDWARD CORSI that O'DWYER and the Brooklyn Prosecutor's Office were guilty of gross laxity, inefficiency and mal-administration in a failure to prosecute the subject.

Further allegations were made whereby ANASTASIA's police wanted card was removed from police files on May 4, 1942. It is to be further noted that BENEDICT MARCURI, a long time associate of the subject and former official of the Sancor Corporation, is currently confined in New York City Jail awaiting trial for the garment district murder of union organizer WILLIAM LURGE in May 1949.

Former Mayor WILLIAM O'DWYER gave testimony in the 6th hearing of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee at United States Courthouse, Foley Square, concerning his reasons for not prosecuting ALBERT ANASTASIA. These reasons all center about the fact that RELES was the main State witness against ANASTASIA and as a result of his, RELES', death the indictment was dismissed.

According to B.B. TURKOS, RELES, Murder, Inc. informant, stated prior to his death at the Half Moon Hotel, that ALBERT ANASTASIA was the boss of Murder, Inc. and that no murder could be committed without ALBERT ANASTASIA's permission.

EDWARD A. HEFFERMAN, former Assistant District Attorney under WILLIAM O'DWYER, testified before the New York City Crime Commission racket investigation on December 17, 1952 that in the gang murder of longshoreman PETER PANTO, he had received information from ALBERT ANNENBAUN, one of the informants of Murder, Inc. that MENDY WEISS admitted mugging PANTO in the home of JAMES "Dirty Face" FERRACO in New Jersey in 1949 in the company of the subject.

ALBERT ANASTASIA has appeared before several Crime Commissions of the Federal Government and the State and a review of testimony reflects that the subject furnished only negative information. An example of the fact of negative information may be seen in the subject's testimony before the New York State Crime Commission where he was accompanied by Counsel JAMES A. MAJOR, 241 Main Street, Hacksensack, New Jersey.

MAJOR immediately requested that he make a short statement for record with the permission of the Commission. The following is an exact quote from Mr. MAJOR's statement:

"Mr. ANASTASIA at present is named defendant in suit instituted by the United States Attorney for the District of New Jersey for the purpose of denaturalizing him and deporting him from the United States to Italy. He has been called as a witness before the Bergen Grand Jury which was investigating the death of WILLIAM MORETTI which took place in Bergen County. He is also under investigation by the United States Treasury Department, we believe in connection with the Internal Revenue Act.

"This morning's "Times" indicates there has been some suggestion that Mr. ANASTASIA might be involved in a killing which took place in 1940. For that reason we have advised Mr. ANASTASIA that it is within his right to decline to answer any questions which might tend to incriminate him."

From this point on the subject refused to answer many questions concerning his associates, income, background, etc. Concerning ANASTASIA's connection with WILLIAM MORETTI the following is reported:

According to an article appearing in the "Brooklyn Eagle" on October 5, 1951, MORETTI met his death typical gangster style at a restaurant, Cliffside Park, New Jersey. The article indicated that four men had been waiting in the restaurant and one had gone outside to look around just before MORETTI appeared. A moment later shots rang out and MORETTI was found dead on the floor. There were no witnesses to this murder.

An article in the "Herald Tribune" dated October 9, 1951, reflects that on October 8, 1951 WILLIAM MORETTI was buried in St. Michael's Cemetery at Lodi, New Jersey. The article described the funeral as a typical gangster type in that floral tributes had come from FRANK COSTELLO, JOE ADONIS, ALBERT ANASTASIA and VITO GENOVESE; however, none of the individuals attended the funeral itself.

On October 10, 1951 former SA [REDACTED] who at that time was Chief Investigator for the New York State Anti-Crime Commission, advised that a contract was made with convicted bookmaker HARRY GROSS involving eighteen policemen in the recent trial in Brooklyn, New York. b7c

The above contract involved an agreement whereby for the price of $200,000.00 GROSS agreed to arrange his testimony so as to force Judge SAMUEL LIEBOWITZ to dismiss the indictment against the eighteen police defendants.

GROSS had insisted that third parties be brought into the contract in order to assure him that the police would carry out part of the agreement, namely the payment of money to one BENNY BROWITZ, proprietor of the 71 Club, 53 Henry Street, Brooklyn, New York. As a result of the GROSS contract JAMES MACRI, the right-hand-man of the subject, was brought into the agreement. MACRI had an unidentified lawyer who was supposed to have met GROSS shortly after the latter's escape from police custody while at his home in Atlantic Beach.

The service charge for this contract was $10,000.00 paid to MACRI and the subject. On October 5 and 6, 1951 [REDACTED] advised that he was extremely concerned that wholesale shooting might soon occur as a result of MORETTI's death. He stated that he had information that MORETTI was going to be killed and he knew ANASTASIA was supposed to be killed. b7c

He explained that after MORETTI and ANASTASIA had arranged and completed a contract between the indicted policemen and HARRY GROSS and after GROSS had carried through his part of the contract MORETTI, apparently with ANASTASIA's backing, had indicated a "shake down" of the indicted policemen and their co-conspirators to the tune of $100,000.00. As a result of the "shake down" a certain group of plainclothesmen made an agreement to talk the matter over with MORETTI and ANASTASIA. Two representatives of that group were supposed to meet MORETTI and ANASTASIA at the restaurant the morning MORETTI was shot.

[REDACTED] b7D

[REDACTED] continued that although no one felt sorry for MORETTI and ANASTASIA since they had broken their agreement, nevertheless they feared the outcome of recent evidence. According to [REDACTED] he felt sure that ANASTASIA was next on the list. b2

In a clipping from the newspaper, "Brooklyn Eagle" dated November 21, 1951 in an article entitled, "Hot Springs Says No to ANASTASIA Sojourner" the following is reflected:

"Gangster ALBERT ANASTASIA reported marked for death by the underworld was barricaded today behind the high wire fence surrounding his Italian style villa at Fort Lee, New Jersey with no place to go.

"The former lord high executioner of Murder, Inc. was told by the underworld to get out and face the same fate as gangster WILLIE MORETTI who was shot down in a Cliffside Park, New Jersey restaurant on October 4th, the New York Anti-Crime Commission reported yesterday."

"MORETTI and ANASTASIA were accused of double-crossing underworld pals, the Committee said, but it was reported that the Mafia-led mobsters had told ANASTASIA they would spare him if he retired to Hot Springs, Arkansas. It is to be noted that the murder of WILLIE MORETTI to this day had informed on the subject and others in the murder of some fifty-six persons in New York City and Sullivan County.

Considerable political capital was made in the 1950 New York City election campaign of former Mayor William O'Dwyer's failure to prosecute Anastasia while O'Dwyer was Brooklyn District Attorney. Allegations were made by Republican mayor candidate Edward Corsi that O'Dwyer and the Brooklyn Prosecutor's Office were guilty of gross laxity, inefficiency and mal-administration in a failure to prosecute the subject.

Further allegations were made whereby Anastasia's police wanted card was removed from police files on May 4, 1942. It is to be further noted that Benedict Macri, a long time associate of the subject and former official of the Sancer Corporation, is currently confined in New York City Jail awaiting trial for the garment district murder of union organizer William Lurye in May 1949.

Former Mayor William O'Dwyer gave testimony in the 6th hearing of the Senate Crime Investigation Committee at United States Courthouse, Foley Square, concerning his reasons for not prosecuting Albert Anastasia. These reasons all center about the fact that Reles was the main State witness against Anastasia and as a result of his, Reles', death the indictment was dismissed.

According to B.E. Turkus, Reles, Murder, Inc. informant, stated prior to his death at the Half Moon Hotel, that Albert Anastasia was the boss of Murder, Inc. and that no murder could be committed without Albert Anastasia's permission.

Albert Anastasia has appeared before several Crime Commissions of the Federal Government and the State and a review of testimony reflects that the subject furnished only negative information. An example of the fact of negative information may be seen in the subject's testimony before the New York State Crime Commission where he was accompanied by Counsel James A. Major, 241 Main Street, Hackensack, New Jersey.

Major immediately requested that he make a short statement for record with the permission of the Commission. The following is an exact quote from Mr. Major's statement:

"Mr. Anastasia at present is named defendant in suit instituted by the United States Attorney for the District of New Jersey for the purpose of denaturalizing him and deporting him from the United States to Italy. He has been called as a witness before the Bergen Grand Jury which was investigating the death of William Moretti which took place in Bergen County. He is also under investigation by the United States Treasury Department, we believe in connection with the Internal Revenue Act.

"This morning's "Times" indicates there has been some suggestion that Mr. Anastasia might be involved in a killing which took place in 1940. For that reason we have advised Mr. Anastasia that it is within his right to decline to answer any questions which might tend to incriminate him."

From this point of the subject refused to answer many questions concerning his associates, income, background, etc. Concerning Anastasia's connection with William Moretti the following is reported:

According to an article appearing in the "Brooklyn Eagle" on October 5, 1951, Moretti met his death typical gangster style at a restaurant, Cliffside Park, New Jersey. The article indicated that four men had been waiting in the restaurant and one had gone outside to look around just before Moretti appeared. A moment later shots rang out and Moretti was found dead on the floor. There were no witnesses to this murder.

It was reported on October 10, 1951 that a contract was made with convicted bookmaker Harry Gross involving eighteen policemen in the recent trial in Brooklyn, New York.

The above contract involved an agreement whereby for the price of $200,000.00 Gross agreed to arrange his testimony so as to force Judge Samuel Leibowitz to dismiss the indictment against the eighteen police defendants.

Gross had insisted that third parties be brought into the contract in order to assure him that the police would carry out part of the agreement, namely the payment of money to one Benny Crowtz, proprietor of the 71 Club, 53 Henry Street, Brooklyn, New York. As a result of the Gross contract James Macri, the right-hand-man of the subject, was brought into the agreement. Macri had an unidentified lawyer who was supposed to have met Gross shortly after the latter's escape from police custody while at his home in Atlantic Beach.

It was found that Moretti and Anastasia had arranged and completed a contract between the indicted policemen and Harry Gross and after Gross had carried through his part of the contract Moretti, apparently with Anastasia's backing, had indicated a "shake down" of the indicted policemen and their co-conspirators to the tune of $100,000.00. As a result of the "shake down" a certain group of plainclothesmen made an agreement to talk the matter over with Moretti and Anastasia. Two representatives of that group were supposed to meet Moretti and Anastasia at the restaurant the morning Moretti was shot.

In a clipping from the newspaper, "Brooklyn Eagle" dated November 21, 1951 in an article entitled,

"Hot Springs Says No to Anastasia Sojourner" the following is reflected:

"Gangster Albert Anastasia reported marked for death by the underworld was barricaded today behind the high wire fence surrounding his Italian style villa at Fort Lee, New Jersey with no place to go.

"The former lord high executioner of Murder, Inc. was told by the underworld to get out and face the same fate as gangster Willie Moretti who was shot down in a Cliffside Park, New Jersey restaurant on October 4th, the New York Anti-Crime Commission reported yesterday."

"Moretti and Anastasia were accused of double-crossing underworld pals, the Committee said, but it was reported that the Mafia-led mobsters had told Anastasia they would spare him if he retired to Hot Springs, Arkansas. It is to be noted that the murder of Willie Moretti to this day has not been solved, although New Jersey State authorities apparently are still investigating."

In a clipping from the "New York World Telegram and Sun" dated August 13, 1953 in an article entitled, "United States stepping up deportation racketeers, red targets" the following is reflected:

Albert Anastasia is one of the seventeen naturalized citizens who have denaturalization suits pending against them.

In an article in the "New York Daily News" dated October 14, 1953, entitled, "Treated bad but killer Al likes the United States" the following is reflected:

Fighting vigorously for civil liberties Albert Anastasia, retired executioner of Murder, Inc., protested yesterday before Newark Federal Judge William Smith that he had to stand some very bum raps in his day.

Nonetheless, in spite of the terrible abuses of personal freedom in this country, especially in Brooklyn, where the Homicide cops were always picking on Albert he made it plain he doesn't want to leave it. The country, that is, not Brooklyn.

The following article appeared in the April 27, 1954 issue of the "New York Times", entitled, "Anastasia's Citizenship Revoked by United States Court" the following is reflected:

"Albert Anastasia of Fort Lee lost his citizenship here today when Federal District Court Judge William A. Smith signed a denaturalization order. Pierre Garvan, assistant United States attorney, informed the court that deportation proceedings would be postponed pending an appeal by Anastasia, described by the Department of Justice as a one-time head of the Brooklyn gang known as Murder, Inc. His correct name is Umberto Anastasio."

"Judge Smith has upheld the Government's contention that Anastasia obtained naturalization papers in 1943, having concealed part of his criminal record, and that, as a 17 year old seaman on an Italian vessel, he deserted ship in New York in 1917, thus entering this country illegally."

The following article appeared on September 20, 1955 in the "New York Herald Tribune", entitled, "Anastasia Citizenship Plea Upheld" "Fraud Ruled Out in 2-1 Decision" the following is reflected:

"The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today upheld Albert Anastasia, once the "lord high executioner" of Murder, Inc., in his appeal of a lower court decision that had stripped him of citizenship. The court ruled 2-1 that Anastasia had not defrauded the government, as charged, in obtaining citizenship."

"He had been stripped of citizenship by United States District Court Judge William F. Smith in Newark, N.J., April, 1954 on grounds he entered the country illegally and concealed his criminal record. The government charged he obtained citizenship through fraud and failed to mention a number of arrests in his application for naturalization papers."

"Cite Examiner's Finding"

The Circuit Court's majority opinion, written by Judge Harry E. Kalodner, said Anastasia was examined by an experienced naturalization examiner in 1943 and it was recommended he be granted his petition for naturalization. The opinion, concurred in by Judge Herbert F. Goodrich, said the examiner must have realized the defendant had fraudulently concealed his criminal record in registration proceedings in 1931."

"Judge Kalodner asked "in the light of these circumstances how can it be said that the government was the victim of any fraud on the part of the defendant when it received his naturalization in 1943?"

The opinion said that in such a case "the law should be construed as far as reasonably possible in favor of the citizen." "There must be a solidity of proof which leaves no troubling doubt in deciding a question of such gravity as is implied in an attempt to reduce the person to the status of alien from that of citizen."

"Anastasia was admitted to citizenship in June 29, 1943, through a special act of Congress which permitted aliens who served in the armed forces to avoid red tape."

According to B.B. Turkus the waterfront had been Albert Anastasia's apples almost since the day he slipped into the United States in 1917. Although Albert claims since 1948 he has been part owner of a dress company in Hazleton, Pennsylvania, it is well known that Anastasia controlled the Brooklyn piers for years.

For example in October, 1945 Albert Anastasia caused the longshoremen to return to work after the famous New York waterfront strike. It is noted that the section that reported back to work first was the Brooklyn element of the International Longshoreman's Association headed by Anastasia. At this time Anastasia had the idea of getting rid of [REDACTED] who apparently had control of waterfront unions in New York City for some time and it was Anastasia's idea to set up a Brooklyn empire of the ILA. b7c

In a telegram dated October 29, 1951 released by the New York City Anti-Crime Commission which was sent to Governor Thomas W. Dewey and signed by Spruille Braden, Chairman of the New York City Anti-Crime Commission, reflected the following:

Among the mobsters who dominate the majority of the ILA are Anthony Anastasia, Brooklyn waterfront boss whose power derives from his brother Albert, lord high executioner of Murder, Inc.

Albert Anastasia was tried in November of 1954 on charges of evading income tax payment of $11,742.00 for the years 1947 and 1948. After five weeks trial the jury failed to reach a verdict and a mistrial was ordered.

On May 1, 1955, news releases from Miami, Florida, reported the discovery that Charles Ferri and his wife were missing from their home five miles northeast of Miami, and it was indicated that at the time they could not call it murder until their bodies were located. It appeared to be that such was the case. The Ferri residence in Miami was apparently a shambles with blood found on the living room, bedroom, and bathroom floors, in addition to the hallway. There was also found a large pool of blood beside Mrs. Ferri's bed. Charles Ferri, age 68, was a former Fort Lee, New Jersey, resident and was to have been a principal witness for the government in the retrial of Anastasia. Ferri, who retired a few years ago from the plumbing and heating contracting business in Fort Lee, was a witness in Anastasia's first trial which resulted in a "hung jury". Ferri had testified in that trial that he was paid $8,700.00 for plumbing and heating work on Anastasia's home at 75 Bluff Road, in Fort Lee. Ferri's testimony was important because he was one of a few witnesses to say that he had received money directly from Anastasia. His testimony was that Anastasia gave him $1,000.00 in cash and that the remainder came from two foreman on the job. Ferri could not be located for the purposes of serving a subpoena for the second trial.

Suddenly on May 23, 1955, Anastasia accompanied by his attorney, [REDACTED] appeared before Judge Madden, at Camden, and entered guilty pleas to two counts of the income tax evasion. b7c

On June 3, 1955, Federal Judge Thomas M. Madden sentenced Anastasia to one year in prison on each of the two counts but ordered that the sentences run concurrently.

Mafia Link In Death of Anastasia?

Killing Revives 'Syndicate' Talk

By Richard C. Wald

The gangland slaying of Albert Anastasia Friday morning as he sat in a Park Sheraton Hotel barber chair, has brought speculation to bear once again on the inner organization of underworld syndicates, the Mafia.

When it is quiet, the Mafia is far from inactive. It is simply working smoothly as the organizing center of much of the crime in the United States. When it erupts into the headlines, as it may be doing in the Anastasia slaying, it's an indication that there has been friction somewhere along the line and the chief hoods are taking care of their own personnel problems.

Believed 700 Years Old

The origins of the Mafia are lost in the history of Sicily, a rocky, mountainous island at the toe of Italy, famous over the century for its brigands. It probably started some 700 years ago and in its reign, particularly during the Napoleonic wars, it served as a center for local resistance of foreign invaders.

At its heart is the Sicilian concept of "omerta," not simply secrecy but a complete refusal to cooperate in any way at any time with the "outsiders" who constitute the government and the police. During the last century it discarded patriotism and concentrated on various rackets. It kept its laws and chose its leaders through violence.

Mafia came to this country in the late 1800s, along with waves of Italian immigrants and another society called Camorra, or the Black Hand whose members and name it gradually assimilated. Its first outbreak of violence here was in 1890, when operators of a Mafia "protection" racket killed the chief of police in New Orleans. Eleven men were lynched by a mob of outraged New Orleans citizens before the incident was closed.

Chicago, New York Centers

In New York and Chicago, where large groups of Italian immigrants settled, Mafia dug in. It had a dual face. For many, under the guise of the Unione Sicilione, it was a social organization, a mutual aid society from the old country. As the Mafia, though, a sort of vigilante arm of the Unione, it worked its way into the rackets and provided "enforcement" for people who got out of line.

The men who ran it were Sicilians by birth or descent, a number of Italians from the southern regions of the peninsula, and a very few outsiders. The "mafiosi" here continued their contacts with the old country, but evolved their own leadership—a series of co-ordinating councils, parceled-out territories, and rank-and-file mobsters.

The story runs that in the '30s, when Mafia left penny-ante protection for bootlegging, narcotics, numbers and prostitution rackets, Salvatore Maranzano, then titular head of the organization, came here from Sicily to take over. Al Capone, it is said, went to him and put it on the line—Capone ran the Syndicate here and would brook no opposition. Maranzano got a $2,000 a week honorarium for his title. When he tried to set up his own organization, he was murdered.

The men who reportedly control the Mafia now were boys in those days. They were the young rank-and-file gunmen who made good. This was publicized during the New York State Crime Commission hearings and the Kefauver Committee hearings in 1951 and 1952.

Alumni of Thugs

Charles "Lucky" Luciano, Frank Costello, Vito Genovese, Thomas Luchese, alias Three Finger Brown, Willie and Salvatore Moretti, Joe Adonis, Jack Dragna, and the executioner, Albert Anastasia, were held together by links which were supposed to be nothing more than acquaintance but seemed nothing less than a blood pact and control of multi-million-dollar rackets.

That they never liked the publicity seems obvious. They may also have been panicked by it. In 1951, Philip Mangano was found dead in a Canarsie swamp. It was believed at the time that he was trying to get out of the Mafia. No one has ever been known to leave alive. His brother, Vincent, one of the inner-circle men in the organization, disappeared.

Luciano, Adonis and Dragna, reputedly the boss of the West Coast, have been deported. Willie Moretti was shot to death. His brother Salvatore died in prison. Last May 2 someone took a shot at Frank Costello, who was supposed to be one of the elder statesmen and above-the-strife gentlemen of the Mafia. Luchese, an intimate of politicians and gangsters, is living as quietly as possible.

Much of the speculation about the organization centers on Genovese. He may be the "Don" of the organization here. It could have been that Albert Anastasia wanted to move up the executive ladder of the organization and the quiet men in the background said no.

CRIMINAL ACTIVITIES

In the book entitled, "Murder, Inc." by Sid Feder and Burton B. Turkus concerning the subject the following is reflected:

Albert Anastasia has been getting away with murder for thirty years now, and a lot of people have been helping him. Since 1920, three years after he jumped ship and struggled his way into the United States, Anastasia has been close to some thirty assassinations with gun, icepick and strangling rope either in person or by direction.

The New York City Police Department has linked Anastasia to twenty different slayings. Albert Anastasia's only jail penalty was for carrying a gun in 1923. For five murders he was arrested, for two he was tried in a court of law, for one he even went to the death house, for the remainder he was discharged. His activity in Murder, Inc. left bodies all over America and after the formation of the syndicate underworld law decreed they could not murder without his approval.

According to police reports in connection with the kidnapping of Isidor Juffe in 1932 for which Joe Adonis was indicted the subject was recognized by Juffe as being among his assailants in this kidnapping. The subject was never indicted or convicted for this crime.

On November 21, 1950 United States Attorney Franklin J. Parker, Eastern District of New York, issued a press release announcement that he was opening an all out inquiry into the activity of the subject with a ship repair concern. Reference was made to the Sancor Corporation which filed bankruptcy papers in Brooklyn Federal Court in 1937. The article emphasized the fact that Albert Anastasia resided in a $100,000.00 Spanish type mansion surrounded by a high wire fence fitted with spotlights.

The article recalled that Anastasia was a key witness in the Murder, Inc. investigation and that a murder charge naming him as the murderer of Morris Diamond, union official, was dismissed when the racketeering Abe Reles plunged to his death on November 12, 1941 from the fifth floor window of a Coney Island hotel. Reles, a member of Murder, Inc.,

has not been solved, although New Jersey State authorities apparently are still investigating."

In a preliminary prosecution defense conference before Judge SMITH the hood's lawyers would only concede three items on his record as produced by the Government. Two were homicide raps and indictment back in 1921 which was dismissed and a direct verdict of acquittal for trial in 1933.

The third admission was a penitentiary term he did in 1923 for carrying concealed weapons.
