"The New York Times" of July 21, 1975, contained an article in which it quoted from the latest issue of Newsweek magazine which reported that FBI Agents broke into an average of one foreign embassy a month in recent years. The article indicated the FBI conducted about 1,500 break-ins of embassies and missions, criminal hide-outs and headquarters of extremist groups such as the Ku Klux Klan and the Communist Party, USA (CPUSA). The embassy break-ins were described as having been usually staged to obtain information to help the National Security Agency break foreign codes.

F.B.I. Embassy Break-Ins Put at One-a-Month Rate

NY Times
July 21, 1975

By Reuters

Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation broke into an average of one foreign embassy a month in recent years. Newsweek magazine reports in its latest issue. In one Arab mission they met Israeli agents already there, walked away, the magazine adds.

Newsweek says that F.B.I. agents broke into the embassies of Arab countries, Poland, Yugoslavia, France and Japan, stole a coding machine from the Czechoslovak Embassy and blocked a New York City police inquiry into a break-in at the apartment of a Soviet diplomat assigned to the United Nations.

The magazine quotes Justice Department and present and former F.B.I. employees as the sources of its information.

The bureau conducted about 1,500 break-ins of embassies and missions, criminal hideouts and headquarters of extremist groups such as the Ku Klux Klan and the American Communist party, the Newsweek articles says.

"Embassy break-ins, averaging one a month by one estimate, were usually staged to get information that could help the National Security Agency break foreign codes," it adds.

The magazine says the agents were organized into groups known as "black-bag teams" or "black-bag boys."

They dressed in suits and ties but did not carry guns, badges or credentials, the article adds and quotes a former agent as having said the agents had been told, "If you get caught, you're on your own."

The teams consisted of a Jocksmith, a lookout and one or two men to carry out the searches. Newsweek reports and adds that sometimes a "stugger" was sent along to intercept anyone who might discover a break-in while it was in progress.

Two sources reported, the article says that F.B.I. agents posing as garbage collectors mugged an entire coding machine and a truckload of files from the Czechoslovak Embassy in Washington about 15 years ago, and were so excited they forgot to take the garbage. The F.B.I. filmed the result from a concealed observation point the next morning, Newsweek says.

"One of the funniest things you'd ever see was the film of the Czech deputy chief of security going to the Soviet Embassy with his hat in his hand," Newsweek quoted one source as having said.

"The Czechs couldn't even wire Prague to tell them what had happened. They had to go to the Soviet Embassy and use the Soviet machines."

F.B.I. Declines to Comment

SPECIAL TO THE NEW YORK TIMES

WASHINGTON, July 20—An F.B.I. spokesman, Homer Boynton, said the bureau had "no comment" on the report of F.B.I. break-ins at embassies and missions.

Mr. Boynton said he could not add anything to the statement by the F.B.I. director, Clarence M. Kelley, at a news conference last week that the agency had in the past made "surreptitious entries" into various places, including embassies, since World War II.

All the information on the burglaries is being transferred to the Attorney General and the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, Mr. Boynton said.

Mr. Kelley said that the bureau's agents had committed the break-ins and burglaries to obtain "information relative to the security of the nation."

He added that "there were a few" such break-ins at embassies here after 1966 — the year that F.B.I. sources have previously given for the termination of the practice by J. Edgar Hoover, the bureau's late director.

Mr. Kelley said that he had not been asked to approve any break-ins in the two years he has been in office.

The FBI's 'Black-Bag Boys'

President ordered an end to the controls that have kept the price of domestic "old oil"—generally from wells in operation before 1973—at an artificially low $5.25 per barrel. Instead of the immediate and total decontrol he had once envisioned, however, Ford proposed a gradual phasing out of price controls over the next two and a half years. Eventually, all old oil—about 60 per cent of domestic production—would join "new oil" in following the world market price. But Ford conceded that there should be some limit; he proposed a domestic ceiling of $13.50 per barrel.

Ripples: Ford's concessions on the question of a ceiling and on the need for gradual decontrol hinted plainly at compromise and thus were probably the most significant parts of his order, but critics preferred to focus initially on the plan's specific economic impact. The President said only that his proposal would add 1 cent to the price of each gallon of gasoline during the first year and a total of 7 cents in 30 months. But consumer advocate Ralph Nader warned of a far-reaching "ripple effect" inflating the economy. Some experts in Congress cited a computer projection warning that 800,000 more Americans would be unemployed, the gross national product would be cut by $40 billion and consumer prices would be raised by 3.2 per cent.

Despite last-minute maneuvering, Ford apparently couldn't raise enough support to keep Congress from killing his decontrol plan this week. But he did have the votes to sustain his veto of a bill passed last week that would tighten controls on old oil and roll back new-oil prices to $11.28 per barrel. Ford also pledged to veto a backup plan for, simply extending current controls to March 1. To avoid the instant skyrocketing of prices, however, both sides may well agree to a briefer extension.

That would provide time for a more comprehensive compromise, and some of its features already seemed plain. One key House committee was considering a phased decontrol of oil, similar to Ford's plan but with a lower ceiling price. A consensus was also building on some sort of windfall-profits tax for oil companies, mandatory mileage standards for new automobiles, the creation of a strategic oil reserve—and a multimillion-dollar trust fund to help find new ways of keeping up with the nation's need for energy.

—DAVID M. ALPERN with HENRY W. HUBBARD and THOMAS M. DEFRANK in Washington

Every foreign intelligence agent had suspected it and every major mafioso had known for sure, but last week director Clarence Kelley made it official: the FBI, he reported, has in the past made "sur-reptitious entries" into various places, foreign embassies included, to obtain what it felt was important information. Kelley said the break-ins began during World War II and were largely discontinued by J. Edgar Hoover in 1966, and he implied they were legal because the agents "acted in good faith." But the disclosure touched off a major furor: Attorney General Edward Levi promised a criminal investigation, several foreign former agent who said he had taken part in many break-ins. "You were told, 'If you get caught, you're on your own'." They were known as "black-bag teams" or "black-bag boys" and they usually consisted—at a minimum—of a locksmith, a lookout and a couple of men to do the ransacking. Depending on the purpose of the break-in, one of them would know how to use a camera or install a bug. Sometimes a "slugger" was sent along to intercept unexpected visitors. "We had guys who, if they went bad, would be the best second-story men in the world," boasted one former agent.

Over the years, a Justice Department official told NEWSWEEK'S Stephan Leshner, the FBI conducted about 1,500 break-ins of foreign embassies and missions, mob hangouts and the headquarters of such extremist groups as the Ku Klux Klan and the American Communist Party. Embassy break-ins, averaging one a month by one estimate, were usually staged to get information that could help the National Security Agency break foreign codes.

Bugs: One top source said last week that he never knew of a case in which the FBI planted a bug in an embassy; if the code were cracked, no bug would be needed anyway and, besides, a diplomatic bug was almost sure to be found. But break-ins against organized-crime figures and U.S. Communists were almost always to plant bugs. "They had bugs in mob apartments all over New York," said one government investigator.

A break-in at a mob office in Brooklyn, for example, might employ only a lookout, a driver for a getaway car and a couple of agents. But a break-in at a major embassy or mission would require not only a skilled team, but dozens of agents to fan out across the city and watch all of the 50 to 60 persons known to have keys to the building. The agents who entered usually would take in sensitive cameras (capable of taking pictures without a flash) and small copying machines that could be folded into a suitcase. They wouldn't read anything," said one FBI source. "They just copy everything in sight." The agents would photograph the coding machine from every possible angle, then copy messages and replace the originals. The idea was that the National Security Agency would have intercepted incoming coded messages and the FBI would have decoded copies. That, plus the ambassadors called the White House to learn whether they had been targets, and Presidential counsel Philip Buchen berated Levi for not keeping Kelley "on a shorter leash." Most intriguingly, the director's disclosure also set other tongues wagging. NEWSWEEK'S Anthony Marro pieced together this story of the FBI's after-hours adventures:

The FBI agents usually went in clean. No badge, no guns, no credentials. Almost always they wore the standard uniform of suit and tie, but with labels and cleaners' markings removed. "It was your ass if you got caught," recalled a photographs, might enable the NSA to break the code.

Two sources said that the FBI actually smuggled out an entire coding machine about fifteen years ago. Borrowing a truck and uniforms from a garbage-collection company, agents drove into the yard of the Czech Embassy in Washington and waited near an open window, through which a Czech defector passed not only the machine but nearly a truckload of files. "They were so excited that they forgot to pick up the garbage," said one source. The next morning, the FBI filmed the results from a hide-out. "One of the funniest things you'd ever see," the source said, "was the film of the Czech deputy chief of security going to the Soviet Embassy with his hat in his hand. The Czechs couldn't even wire Prague to tell them what had happened. They had to go to the Soviet Embassy and use the Soviet machines."

Salute: This same source and another agreed that in the late 1950s and early 1960s the FBI also broke into the Polish and Yugoslav embassies in Washington. At least three separate bureau sources agreed that there was "no way" for agents to penetrate the Soviet Embassy, so instead they targeted Soviet satellite countries. Even allies, such as France or Japan, were occasional targets, as were the Arab states. "All the Arab embassies were easy," said one bureau source. "The only problem was tripping over the Israelis already inside." He said that in at least one case FBI agents breaking into an Arab mission found themselves face to face with Israeli agents. What happens in such cases? "You salute each other and walk away," the source said. "Nobody wants any trouble."

There were enough problems as it was. Once, in a mob headquarters in the Midwest, an agent planting a microphone slipped on a joist in the attic and thrust his foot through the ceiling of the room below. The agents had to wake up the owner of a hardware store and get plaster to repair the ceiling before dawn. During the late 1950s, two sources said, an agent had a heart attack and died while helping with a bag job in one of the Eastern European embassies. And sometimes local police stumbled onto an FBI break-in. When that happened, "You hit the cop and you ran," said one former agent. Said another: "There were some nasty confrontations in back alleys."

Two sources recalled a case ten years ago in which FBI agents had earlier planted a bug in the office of a mob attorney and had "gone back in to juice it up." One agent dropped something that he shouldn't have been carrying anyway—either his credentials or a report with his name on it—and when the lawyer came in next morning, it was clear the FBI had been there. As the sources recalled it, the agent was fired.

There were cases in which local police concealed the FBI's tracks. More than a decade ago, a former New York City policeman recalled, the FBI broke into the apartment of a Soviet diplomat assigned to the United Nations. As usual, there was an agent on watch in the lobby of the apartment, but the Russian—who had forgotten some theater tickets—somehow returned without being spotted. When he discovered the agents, their only recourse was to pretend that they really were burglars. They hit him, knocked him down and hurriedly ransacked the room. The Russians called the cops, who came to investigate, but later that night the FBI told the detectives not to probe too hard. The detectives were unhappy about it because they had to fill out monthly status reports on the "unsolved" case.

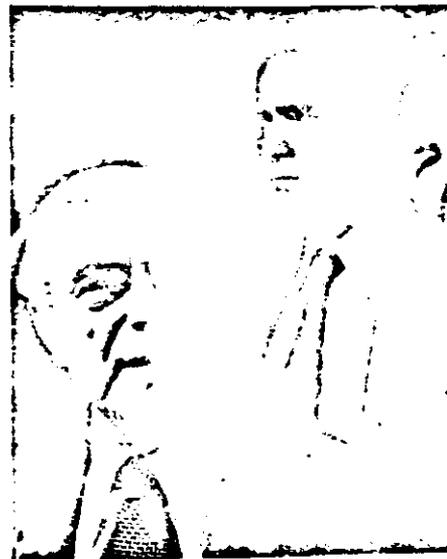

On one occasion, however, the FBI unwittingly helped the New York police. An FBI agent was breaking into the apartment of a mobster while a lookout and a getaway man waited in separate cars. The plan was for the "burglar" to come out and signal to the lookout, who would honk twice; the getaway car would drive up and speed the "burglar" away. "Off they went at 90 miles per hour," said a former agent. "About six blocks away, the driver looks at the passenger and says, 'Who the f--- are you?' The passenger looks at the driver and answers, 'Who the f--- are you?'" The passenger, it seemed, was a police "burglar" whose target was another apartment in the same building—and whose getaway signal was also two honks of a horn.

NEW YORK: MAC the Knife

Two crises ago—as New York reckons time these days—Gov. Carey and the New York State Legislature created the Municipal Assistance Corporation to help the Big Apple through bankruptcy. That was back in 1975, when Big Mac, as it was immediately and quickly prepared to take on the city's staggering $6 billion in short-term debts. The MAC was to issue long-term bonds of its own—specially earmarked city sales tax bonds—while watching over the traffic-light-gimmick-ridden City Hall reconstruction process. Politicians, unions and financial leaders heaved a sigh of relief—but that proved premature. The city resumed its gimmickry. Big Mac was a tepid welcome in the bond market, and New York was faced last year with the most distasteful dose of fiscal discipline it has yet had to swallow.

Image: With its first $1 billion issue not completely sold and another $1 billion still to offer, Big Mac Mayor Abe Beame to the City Council. Only weeks before, Beame had announced massive layoffs of city workers, 19,000 of which were still supposed to take effect despite additional tax levies authorized for the city to help pay the crisis (NEWSWEEK, July 14). The painful experience—including a five-day garbage strike—had done more than good to the city's image with potential investors, Beame was told by board chairman Thomas D. Flynn. "The Big Mac came back from their road show and discouraged about the city around the country," one source said. "They couldn't believe that the city and its life-style—tuition at City University to the capitulation to city unions."

SURREPTITIOUS ENTRY

ALL INFORMATION CONTAINED

Between the years 1942 to 1967, the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) utilized surreptitious entry in cases bearing on the security of the Nation. When a Special Agent in Charge (SAC) of a field office considered the technique necessary to the conduct of an investigation, he would make his request to the appropriate Assistant Director, justifying need for a surreptitious entry and assuring it could be safely accomplished with full security. In accordance with Director's Hoover's instructions, a memorandum outlining the facts of the request was then prepared for approval of Mr. Tolson, the Associate Director, or Director Hoover. Subsequently, the memorandum was filed in the Assistant Director's office under a "Do Not File" procedure, and thereafter destroyed. In the field office, the SAC maintained a record of approval, as a control device, in his office safe. At the next yearly field office inspection, a review would be made of these records by the Inspector to insure that the SAC was not acting without prior Headquarters approval in conducting surreptitious entries. Upon completion of this review, these records were then destroyed. Accordingly, in attempting to now reconstruct those instances of surreptitious entry, FBI Headquarters necessarily had to rely upon search of our indices and the recollection of Special Agents who might have knowledge of such activity.

In July, 1966, Director J. Edgar Hoover ordered discontinuance of the aforementioned technique. In January, 1967, Director Hoover restated his position in a memorandum that he would not authorize use of the surreptitious entry technique.

In connection with the installation of microphone surveillances, surreptitious entry was required in many instances. Prior to March 30, 1965, microphone installation and activation did not require written authority from the Attorney General, but could be effected on FBI Headquarters authority. The Department was aware of this procedure as evidenced by a memorandum from former Attorney General Herbert Brownell, dated May 20, 1954, which recognized FBI authority to institute such surveillances.

By memorandum to the Attorney General dated March 30, 1965, Director Hoover stated that the FBI would begin requesting Attorney General authority for the placement of microphones. By memorandum dated September 27, 1965, the Attorney General referred to microphones involving trespass and confirmed his understanding that such microphones would not be used without his authorization.

A recent FBI survey determined that during the period January, 1967, to March, 1975, the Attorney General authorized operation of 172 microphone surveillances.

Prior to September, 1974, surveys to determine if a microphone surveillance would be feasible at a particular location were authorized by FBI Headquarters. Some of these feasibility surveys involved trespass. Where a microphone installation was considered feasible, authority for operation of the surveillance was obtained from the Attorney General. Since September, 1974, the FBI has followed a policy of requesting authority of the Attorney General to conduct these feasibility surveys. Since that time, the Attorney General has authorized surveys and installations on 23 occasions.

SURREPTITIOUS ENTRY

"The New York Times" edition of July 20, 1975, on page K2, contains an article captioned "The F.B.I.'s Record on Break-Ins." According to the article, the FBI perpetrated break-ins in investigating ordinary cases of bank robbery, kidnaping, and hijacking in addition to those involving "national security."

The General Investigative Division (GID) at FBI Headquarters has the responsibility for supervising investigative matters of substantive Federal violations within FBI investigative jurisdiction in all cases including Bank Robbery, Kidnaping, and Hijacking except those involving violations of the Fugitive Felon Act, Organized Crime and Internal Security matters. It does supervise some matters involving anti-racketeering which might fall into an organized crime category. The GID does not now have nor has it ever established any program(s) involving "surreptitious entry" as an investigative technique. Likewise, officials currently assigned to the GID have no knowledge of any instances wherein a surreptitious entry was utilized in the investigation of matters handled by the GID.

It is noted, however, that there have been occasions, where pursuant to a court authorized interception of oral communications by use of concealed microphones, appropriate entry necessary for the installation of said microphones was made into private premises. These entries are considered legal and proper.

REC 21

An article appearing in "Newsweek" July 28, 1975, alluded to a number of surreptitious entries engaged in by the FBI from the 1940's until 1966. While general in nature, this article referred to several specific cases involving our investigations in both the security and organized crime fields. The writer related a set of facts concerning entry made in an attorney's office at which time Agents supposedly left behind certain evidence which identified the persons making entry as being with the FBI. It is felt that the situation referred to concerns our investigation of Alvin L. Malnik, a Miami attorney. There is attached a separate communication setting forth the complete facts relating to the Malnik situation.

At one point in the article the writer made reference to problems encountered by the Agents while conducting surreptitious entries and referred to a situation in which entry was made into "mob headquarters" for the purpose of planting a microphone. During this entry an Agent supposedly "thrust his foot through the ceiling." We are unable to locate any record of such an occurrence taking place.

We are unable to locate any record of a breaking in at a mob office in Brooklyn, New York, as stated in the article.

AUG 5 1975

Knowledgeable representatives of the Special Investigative Division are aware of no surreptitious entries made by the FBI in any criminal field other than those conducted to install electronic surveillance equipment, which had been duly authorized.

This is to advise of a meeting of Intelligence Division (INTD) representatives with Mr. John J. Buckley, Jr., Special Assistant to the Attorney General at the Department on August 14, 1975, to discuss various aspects relating to captioned investigative technique.

PURE

Assistant Director W. R. Wannall and [redacted] INTD, met with Mr. Buckley in room 5123, Justice Building.

Mr. Buckley raised a number of questions relating to the use of this technique which he desired answered for his clarification. These included definitions and background relating to targets and procedures in implementing the technique. Mr. Buckley was shown and later at his request furnished copies of memorandum from Mr. Sullivan to Mr. DeLoach dated 7/19/66 captioned "Black Bag Jobs" and memorandum of Director Hoover to Messrs. Tolson and DeLoach dated 1/7/67, uncaptioned but relating to this technique. He indicated he would return these documents which relate to discontinuance of this technique in 1966.

Mr. Buckley requested that the FBI respond to the following questions relating to the use of this technique in connection with criminal investigations:

1. Are "surveys" conducted by FBI personnel to determine the feasibility of microphone installation in criminal cases in the same manner as they are conducted in counterintelligence-type cases?

2. Where surreptitious entry is effected for microphone installation, is the entry limited to the installation or are documents searched for, examined or photographed?

3. While in the past microphone surveillance was used only in kidnaping and extortion cases, Mr. Buckley suggested that recent information (probably in the news media, although he did not say) indicates that surreptitious entry and microphone surveillance have been used in organized crime matters. He requested he be furnished information relating to the use of these techniques in the criminal area.

Mr. Buckley requested representatives of the General and Special Investigative Divisions meet with him to discuss the above three matters. [redacted] of the General Investigative Division and [redacted] of the Special Investigative Division were advised of this request.

GID concurs with recommendation that arrangements be made for meeting with Mr. Buckley.

[REDACTED] GID, is prepared to respond in essence as follows to Mr. Buckley's inquiries as they pertain to matters supervised by GID: (1) Prior to the installation of any microphones pursuant to a court authorization, only surveys utilizing information from legitimate sources are conducted. This would likely involve information from individuals knowledgeable of the spaces involved such as building managers, informants, etc. (2) Entries made for authorized microphone installations are limited to the installation processes and are not for other examination or search. (3) Personnel of GID are unaware of any cases within its supervisory responsibility wherein microphone installations were made requiring an illegal entry. The basis for Mr. Buckley's reference to Kidnaping and Extortion cases is unknown.

SUBJECT: SURREPTITIOUS ENTRIES

JUNE

On 8/19/75, Stanley Pottinger, Assistant Attorney General, Civil Rights Division, telephonically advised Inspector Paul L. Mack that he has been designated by the Attorney General to look into our surreptitious entry program. He wanted to alert the FBI that he is requesting certain material needed to adequately conduct his inquiry. He stated a letter would be forthcoming outlining in detail his request but essentially it is as follows:

- 1) List of surreptitious entries including date of entry for each entry from 1/1/66 to the present.
- 2) Location and nature of premises entered.
- 3) Identities of persons occupying the premises entered.
- 4) The identity of any organization that was the target of the entry.
- 5) The specific purpose of the entry.
- 6) The nature and identity of information obtained.
- 7) Identity of any other organizations of government (local or Federal) which prompted or participated in the entry.
- 8) Identity of all FBI personnel involved in the entry as well as all personnel who approved the entry.
- 9) Identity of the files that relate to the entry.

● AUG 29 1975

In addition, he requested copies of memoranda of former Director J. Edgar Hoover prepared in 1966 and 1967 in which he terminated surreptitious entries. He also requested a copy of memorandum recording the fact that former Attorney General Herbert Brownell had been briefed in 1954 regarding surreptitious entries.

AAG Pottinger requested that the necessary data be promptly compiled and be made available to him by Friday, 8/22/75.

RE: SURREPTITIOUS ENTRIES

AAG Pottinger and Departmental Attorney Frank Allen subsequently advised on 8/19/75 that in connection with microphone installations they recognize that the Bureau's policy at one time was to conduct a feasibility survey prior to securing authority to make the installation and that this policy has been changed so that any feasibility surveys conducted are made following receipt of the Attorney General's authorization. They requested a separate listing be compiled with respect to surreptitious entries in connection with microphone installations.

ACTION:

Intelligence Division, Special Investigative Division and General Investigative Division take necessary steps to obtain the requested information and Intelligence Division coordinate response to AAG Pottinger by 8/22/75.

Reference is made to memorandum of Mr. J. B. Adams to Mr. P. L. Mack, August 19, 1975.

From January, 1966, to the present time, there have been 9¹ surreptitious entries conducted in connection with investigations handled by the Special Investigative Division. All of these entries have been under authority of court order and in accordance with Title III of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, and were undertaken for the purpose of installing electronic devices for the interception of oral communications. In each instance, at the conclusion of the court-authorized period of interception, a second entry was made for the purpose of retrieving the electronic device.

Further, in compliance with the provisions of the above act, subjects of interception were advised no later than 90 days after the termination of the period of the court order that their conversations were intercepted by the Government.

In regard to items three and nine, information requested in referenced memorandum is not retrievable at FBI Headquarters.

In regard to item four, all entries were in accordance with court orders regarding criminal activity on the part of individuals. No organizations were the targets of the entries.

Re: Surreptitious Entries

In regard to item five, the specific purpose of all entries was the installation of an electronic device for the interception of oral communications.

In regard to item six, this does not apply since purpose of entry was solely for installation purposes.

In regard to item seven, no other organizations of government, local or Federal, prompted or participated in the entry.

In regard to item eight, the identity of FBI personnel involved in the entry is not retrievable at FBI Headquarters. It is further pointed out that approval of entry is handled under the provisions of Title III of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. In the preparation of affidavits, FBI Agents coordinate activities with the appropriate United States Attorney in the judicial district where installation is desired, and the affidavit is forwarded to FBI Headquarters for review by appropriate supervising Agents, Legal Counsel Division, and the Director of the FBI. Thereafter, it is forwarded to the Department of Justice for approval of the Attorney General or his designate. Thereafter, approval is obtained from a United States District Judge in the district of origin of the affidavit.

The following, detail each specific entry and provide information as requested in items one and two:

Reference is made to memorandum of Mr. J. B. Adams to Mr. P. L. Mack, 8/19/75, and telephone call of Mr. H. N. Helterhoff to Mr. J. L. Smythe, 8/20/75.

A review of the files of the Special Investigative Division indicates that from January, 1966, to the present time there have been six surreptitious entries conducted in connection with investigations handled by the General Investigative Division. All of these entries have been under authority of court order and in accordance with Title III of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, and were undertaken for the purpose of installing electronic devices for the interception of oral communications. In each instance, at the conclusion of the court-authorized period of interception, a second entry was made for the purpose of retrieving the electronic device.

Further, in compliance with the provisions of the above act, subjects of interception were advised no later than 90 days after the termination of the period of the court order that their conversations were intercepted by the Government.

In regard to Items 3 and 9, information requested in referenced memorandum is not retrievable at FBI Headquarters.

In regard to Item 4, all entries were in accordance with court orders regarding criminal activity on the part of individuals. No organizations were the targets of the entries.

In regard to Item 5, the specific purpose of all entries was the installation of an electronic device for the interception of oral communications.

Re: Surreptitious Entries

In regard to Item 6, this does not apply since the purpose of entry was solely for installation purposes.

In regard to Item 7, no other organizations of government, local or Federal, prompted or participated in the entry.

In regard to Item 8, the identity of FBI personnel involved in the entry is not retrievable at FBI Headquarters. It is further pointed out that approval of entry is handled under the provisions of Title III of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. In the preparation of affidavits, FBI Agents coordinate activities with the appropriate U. S. Attorney in the judicial district where installation is desired, and the affidavit is forwarded to FBI Headquarters for review by appropriate supervising Agents, Legal Counsel Division, and the Director of the FBI. Thereafter, it is forwarded to the Department of Justice for approval of the Attorney General or his designate. Thereafter, approval is obtained from a U. S. District Judge in the district of origin of the affidavit.

The following detail each specific entry and provide information as requested in Items 1 and 2:

Location	Date of Court Order	Date Installed	Date Discontinued	Nature of Premises

SUBJECT: UNCONSENTED, WARRANTLESS PHYSICAL ENTRIES CONDUCTED BY THE FBI

Surreptitious Entries

On 8/25/75 at 2:19 p.m., Mr. Jack Fuller, Special Assistant to the Attorney General, called requesting of Deputy Assistant Director Thomas W. Leavitt data depicting the Bureau's authority for surreptitious entries for purposes other than installing a microphone. He stated he needed this material no later than Tuesday, August 26, 1975, in order to assist in preparing a communication for the Attorney General.

Attached memorandum previously prepared by the Legal Counsel Division covers the matter of Mr. Fuller's request. The data was furnished to the Attorney General by letter dated 6/30/75 along with a number of other items of interest.

ACTION:

Attached copy of memorandum entitled "PRESIDENTIAL AUTHORITY TO AUTHORIZE UNUSUAL INVESTIGATIVE TECHNIQUES IN FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE INVESTIGATIONS" be forwarded to Mr. Fuller.

JUNE 1 - Mr. F. J. Cassidy

SUBJECT: SURREPTITIOUS ENTRIES

ALL (b)(7)(C)

To advise of a 9/9/75 meeting between Mr. Frank Allen, Deputy Chief, Criminal Section, Civil Rights Division of the Department, and [redacted] Intelligence Division, regarding the 8/19/75 letter of J. Stanley Pottinger, Assistant Attorney General, Civil Rights Division, requesting information about captioned activities conducted by the Bureau since 1/1/66.

The above 8/19/75 letter requested certain information in nine categories about each surreptitious entry. Several of the categories, including date of entry, location and nature of premises, and occupants of the premises, were self-explanatory; others, including the nature of information and materials obtained, and identity of FBI personnel involved in the entries were subject to various interpretations and therefore in need of further clarification.

Category number 6, the "nature of information and materials obtained," will, in the case of microphone installations, be limited to that information gathered from the microphone itself. Therefore, this category, according to Mr. Allen, may be answered by responding as to whether or not conversations were overheard (i.e. "conversations of subject").

Memorandum to Mr. W. R. Wannall
Re: Surreptitious Entries

Category number 8, regarding the "identity of all FBI personnel who took part in the entries, and any person who approved or recommended such entry," may be answered by identifying (1) the Field Supervisor and highest approving authority in the field office who together recommended the action to FBIHQ, (2) the FBIHQ case supervisor and highest approving Bureau official who together approved the activity for a field office, (3) approval of the Attorney General on the appropriate date, and (4) the identities of the Special Agents who actually took part in the installation, or survey.

With respect to (1) and (2) in the foregoing paragraph, Mr. Allen recognized that on some occasions officials such as Relief Supervisors, Assistant Special Agents in Charge, Night Supervisors, #1 Men, etc., would approve field communications to FBIHQ recommending surveys and installations, and subsequent FBIHQ authorizations to the field. Where appropriate therefore, the identity of the individual signing a communication, and for whom, should be noted.

With respect to the identities of Special Agents who took part in the actual survey and installation, Mr. Allen was advised that FBIHQ and field office files normally would not reveal this information. Mr. Allen inquired if the data might be obtained through recollection of field office Special Agents assigned to the appropriate areas of investigation. He was advised that in a number of instances, the information might be obtained by this method, although retirements, reassignments, and deaths of Agent personnel would undoubtedly hinder the attempt. Mr. Allen indicated the Bureau should make a reasonable effort to secure the requested identities.

An additional area of question; namely, the lack of any indication in FBIHQ and field office files that a trespass or entry was committed during a survey for microphone installation was brought to Mr. Allen's attention. The matter was resolved in favor of indicating where appropriate, in the Bureau's response to the Department, that FBIHQ and field office files contain no indication an entry was effected for the survey. Where evidence exists to the contrary, the survey would be treated as an entry.

Re: Surreptitious Entries

During the course of the conversation, Mr. Allen indicated that following review of all requested data regarding surreptitious entries, consideration would be given to interviewing selected FBI personnel concerning their knowledge of these activities. In addition, he indicated that files containing instances of surreptitious entries might be reviewed at some later date.

Warrantless Electronic Surveillance by the FBI

The early use of microphones by the FBI is not recorded in detail. Following the issuance of President Roosevelt's May 21, 1940, memorandum, microphone surveillances were used in cases involving matters affecting the defense of the Nation. Throughout World War II and until 1965, the use of microphones was initiated upon the authority of the FBI Director. The unsettled state of law regarding the admissibility of evidence obtained from microphones was of continuing concern to FBI officials. Under existing policy, the Bureau was installing and using microphones on its own authority. On the other hand, the use of these techniques was dictated by considerations of national security which were clearly of concern to President Roosevelt and his successors. Although the Department was not being informed in writing of the installation of microphone coverage, it was clearly aware of this practice by the FBI. In connection with prosecutions of communist leaders under the Smith Act, extensive discussions were held between Bureau representatives and officials of the Department concerning the use of microphones, particularly the question of admissibility of evidence derived from such coverage.

SURREPTITIOUS ENTRIES

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has conducted 97 surreptitious entries since January 1, 1966, in connection with investigations handled under authority of a court order and in accordance with provisions of Title III of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. All of these entries were for the purpose of interception of oral communications. At the conclusion of the court-authorized period of interception, a second entry was made for the purpose of retrieving the electronic device.

In compliance with provisions of the above Act, subjects of interception were advised no later than 90 days after termination of the surveillance that their conversations were intercepted by the Government. All interceptions were made on the basis of criminal activity on the part of subject individuals. No organizations were targets of the entries.

The specific purpose of each entry was for the installation of an electronic device to intercept oral communications. No other organizations of government, local or Federal, promoted or participated in the entries.

Approval for each entry is handled in accordance with provisions of Title III of the above Act. At the field office level, Special Agents coordinate with the appropriate United States Attorney in the judicial district where installation is desired in the preparation of affidavits regarding the desired interception. The affidavit is forwarded to the FBI Headquarters for review by appropriate supervisory personnel, Legal Counsel Division, and the Director. Thereafter, the affidavit is forwarded to the Department of Justice for approval of the Attorney General. Finally, approval is obtained from a U. S. District Judge in the district of origin of the affidavit.

Reference is made to memorandum from Legal Counsel to Mr. J. B. Adams dated 7/28/75, captioned "Unconsented, Warrantless Physical Entries Conducted By The FBI, i.e., Surreptitious Entries Or 'Bag Jobs,'" which requested that INTD obtain factual data concerning this matter to support Legal Counsel Divisions (LCD's) assessment of defenses to possible criminal charges.

Attached for review by LCD are 3 memoranda from the FBI Director to the Department containing information responsive to LCD's request: a memorandum to the Attorney General dated 7/25/75, captioned "Surreptitious Entry," a memorandum to the Assistant Attorney General, Civil Right Division, dated 9/3/75, captioned "Surreptitious Entries," and a memorandum to the Attorney General dated 1/11/75, also captioned "Surreptitious Entries."

To avoid duplication and with the concurrence of LCD personnel handling this matter, we have held our response in abeyance pending compilation of results of extensive research concerning surreptitious entries which has been conducted at the request of the Department. Attachments set forth factual data developed to date pertinent to LCD's assessment of possible criminal liability for such actions and legal defenses.

ACTION:

The INTD will furnish whatever additional material is compiled on the basis of research concerning surreptitious entries and furnish same to LCD.

SURREPTITIOUS ENTRIES

Reference is made to your letter of August 19, 1975, in which you requested information concerning surreptitious entries conducted by the FBI since January 1, 1966.

Enclosed is a memorandum dated September 3, 1975, containing a list of surreptitious entries conducted since January 1, 1967. A separate list detailing additional entries since January 1, 1966, will be furnished your office as soon as the information is compiled.

You requested information in nine categories concerning each surreptitious entry. You will note in the enclosure that in certain categories, information has not been furnished. Extensive records review is being conducted to provide this data; however, the compartmentalized procedures of administration of these activities will preclude, in many cases, location of information regarding identities of individuals involved and identities of approving authorities.

As the Department has been advised previously by memorandum dated July 25, 1975, entitled "Surreptitious Entry," approval for use of the technique of surreptitious entry was not handled in the manner of usual authorizations in FBI investigations. When a Special Agent in Charge (SAC) of a field office considered the technique necessary he would make a request to the appropriate Assistant Director, justifying the need. In accordance with Director Hoover's instructions, a memorandum was then prepared on the FBI Headquarters level for approval of Mr. Tolson, the Associate Director, or Mr. Hoover. The memorandum was subsequently filed in the Assistant Director's office under a "Do Not File" procedure, and thereafter destroyed. In the field office, the SAC maintained a record of approval, as a control device, in his office safe, and at the next yearly field office inspection, an Inspector would review approvals to conduct surreptitious entries. Upon completion of review, these records were then destroyed.

In addition to surreptitious entries conducted in matters concerning the security of the Nation, entries have been conducted by the FBI for installation of electronic devices for interception of oral communications under authority of a court order, and in accordance with Title III of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. Since January 1, 1966, a total of 97 such entries has been conducted by the FBI, all following passage of the Act.

If you desire, a separate listing of surreptitious entries meeting the above criteria will be furnished your office.

Pursuant to your request, attached is a copy of a memorandum from W. C. Sullivan to Mr. C. D. DeLoach, dated July 19, 1966, entitled "'Black Bag' Jobs"; memorandum of January 6, 1967, prepared by Director Hoover; and memorandum from the Attorney General to Director, FBI, dated May 20, 1954.

As information being furnished, in some instances, concerns sensitive, on-going operations in the foreign counterintelligence field, compromise of which would severely affect our coverage of hostile intelligence services, it is requested that the information be handled on a strict need-to-know basis.

SURREPTITIOUS ENTRIES

Reference is made to the August 19, 1975, letter of J. Stanley Pottinger, Assistant Attorney General, Civil Rights Division, to Clarence M. Kelley, Director, FBI, wherein Mr. Pottinger requested certain information concerning surreptitious entries conducted by the FBI since January 1, 1966.

Mr. Pottinger requested the following information regarding surreptitious entries:

1. The date of the entry.
2. The location and nature of the premises entered.
3. The identity of the person whose premises were entered as well as pertinent information about the person.
4. Any organization or group, if any, which was the target of the investigation in which the entry occurred.
5. The specific purpose of the surreptitious entry.
6. The nature of the information and materials obtained.
7. The identity of any other organization, governmental or private, that prompted the entry, or participated in the planning or execution of the entry.
8. The identity of all FBI personnel who took part in the entries, and any person who approved or recommended such an entry.
9. The identification number of the case file(s) from which information about the entries may be obtained.

SUBJECT: "BLACK BAG" JOBS

The following is set forth in regard to your request concerning what authority we have for "black bag" jobs and for the background of our policy and procedures in such matters.

We do not obtain authorization for "black bag" jobs from outside the Bureau. Such a technique involves trespass and is clearly illegal; therefore, it would be impossible to obtain any legal sanction for it. Despite this, "black bag" jobs have been used because they represent an invaluable technique in combating subversive activities of a clandestine nature aimed directly at undermining and destroying our nation.

The present procedure followed in the use of this technique calls for the Special Agent in Charge of a field office to make his request for the use of the technique to the appropriate Assistant Director. The Special Agent in Charge must completely justify the need for the use of the technique and at the same time assure that it can be safely used without any danger or embarrassment to the Bureau. The facts are incorporated in a memorandum which, in accordance with the Director's instructions, is sent to Mr. Tolson or to the Director for approval. Subsequently this memorandum is filed in the Assistant Director's office under a "Do Not File" procedure.

In the field the Special Agent in Charge prepares an informal memorandum showing that he obtained Bureau authority and this memorandum is filed in his safe until the next inspection by Bureau Inspectors, at which time it is destroyed.

[REDACTED]

Also through the use of this technique we have on numerous occasions been able to obtain material held highly secret and closely guarded by subversive groups and organizations which consisted of membership lists and mailing lists of these organizations.

This applies even to our investigation of the Ku Klux Klan. You may recall that recently through a "black bag" job we obtained the records in the possession of three high-ranking officials of a klan organization in Louisiana. These records gave us the complete membership and financial information concerning the klan's operation which we have been using most effectively to disrupt the organization and, in fact, to bring about its near disintegration.

It was through information obtained through our "black bag" operations that we obtained the basic information used to compromise and to bring about the expulsion of William Albertson, the former Executive Secretary of the Communist Party New York District organization.
