America's Conscience

Comments on the Sacco-Vanzetti Verdict

*Editorial in The NEW REPUBLIC,
August 10:*

It is the firm opinion of many observers of the trial of Sacco and Vanzetti, including the correspondents of several decidedly non-radical Boston dailies, that the men are innocent. The case has a striking similarity to that of Thomas Mooney. As with Mooney, the men were well-known radicals, and the trial was held in an atmosphere of armed guards and solemn precautions that could not but have had its effect in impressing the jury with the dangerous character of the defendants. And as in the Mooney case, the jury's verdict was based on complicated identifications. This latter fact renders it unlikely that any legal court of appeal will take action. Sacco and Vanzetti, like Mooney, will go before the court of public opinion, the decision of which can be registered by executive clemency alone.

*Editorial in The NEW REPUBLIC,
September 7:*

The Sacco-Vanzetti case, like the Mooney case, and like the Dreyfus case, is one which challenges public opinion. It is to the eternal honor of France that the appeal to the great final court of the people resulted in the righting of a signal injustice. It is the shame of California and of America that Mooney lies in prison when the evidence on which he was convicted has been proved to be perjury. In view of these contrary results due to an aroused and enlightened public opinion on one hand, and an apathetic, prejudiced one on the other, we regard as most untimely the action of the Police Commissioner of Boston in revoking a permit from the Mayor's office for a parade and mass meeting in aid of the Sacco-Vanzetti defense fund.

*Editorial in The BOSTON AMERICAN,
August 15:*

... This calls to mind the trial and the verdict in the Sacco and Vanzetti case, and leads us to say again that we earnestly hope that those who believe a great injustice was done in this case will leave nothing undone to see that these men get the benefit of every right which the laws of the country and the Constitution and the principles of humanity and justice provide.

The evidence as it appears from the stenographer's notes is most unconvincing to us and we are informed that nearly all the newspaper reporters from the Boston papers, who covered this trial, agree that the verdict of guilty was not justified. None are better qualified by experience and intelligence and education to pass judgment on such a question than these gentlemen of the press who attended the trial.

*Editorial in The WORLD TOMORROW,
August:*

The conviction of Sacco and Vanzetti on the flimsiest kind of circumstantial evidence is disheartening. There can be no manner of doubt to anyone who followed the case that the conviction was not because evidence of specific crime was strong against them but because the jury, whose passions and fears were artfully aroused by the prosecutor, were moved by the fact that these men were foreigners, radicals and draft evaders. The Sacco-Vanzetti case unless it is reversed in higher court will rank with Mooney's conviction as a travesty on American justice.

AMERICA'S CONSCIENCE

Prof. Clarence R. Skinner, who reported the trial for the New York Evening Post, concludes an article in The SURVEY of August 16 with these words:

"The impression which the writer has gathered from the trial is that the evidence of the defense was stronger than that of the prosecution. But prejudice against the foreigner and the radical is strong and cannot easily be overcome, and it probably was of influence during the entire trial."

Editorial in The VOICE OF LABOR, July 22:

Sacco and Vanzetti, two big-souled and courageous Italian organizers, have been found "Guilty" of first degree murder. They will shortly be sent to the electric chair.

We realize how you feel about this cold-blooded judicial murder. A perusal of the evidence, submitted by the prosecution itself, will convince any fair-minded person that Sacco and Vanzetti are no more responsible for the murder than you or I. They must not die! Sounds good—they must not die! It is a simple matter to say or write it—but what about taking action to prevent the consummation of the deed?

Editorial in The BUTTE BULLETIN, July 29:

The crime for which the two Italians were tried was the payroll robbery. The crime for which they were convicted was agitating for the exposure of the obscure atrocities of the Department of Justice in New York, which reached a grisly climax when Salsedo crashed to the pavement beneath the Park Row building.

J. A. Hopkins, National Chairman of the Committee of 48, in a letter to murder of the paymaster and guard employed by the Slater and Morrill Shoe Company at South Braintree, Mass., on April 15, brings before the public in striking form the danger of circumstantial evidence and the brutality of our capital punishment laws. No one, of course, except Sacco and Vanzetti themselves know whether they are guilty or not. They have both protested their innocence earnestly and apparently sincerely. The evidence against them is entirely of a circumstantial nature, and in many respects of the flimsiest character.

"The public prosecutor, in his charge to the jury, was several times called to account for mis-statements of facts, which he was forced to admit. The character of the prisoners was attacked on various grounds entirely foreign to the crime with which they were charged. The fact that they were labor organizers, their alleged war record, their foreign birth, and other extraneous matters were stressed very forcibly, and while Judge Thayer properly charged the jury to disregard any evidence in relation to these matters it is impossible to imagine, human nature being as it is, that the jury was not influenced perhaps unconsciously by these references."

Rev. Charles F. Dolé, prominent writer on religious and sociological subjects, in a letter to the Boston Herald, August 3:

"...The Herald of July 15 reported these words from Judge Thayer's charge to the Sacco-Vanzetti jury: 'If a person is willing to use a deadly weapon such as a revolver upon an arresting officer in order to gain his liberty, what would you naturally expect would be the gravity of the crime of which such person must be consciously guilty?'

"I believe this illustrates perfectly

The following are a few of the many articles on the case-printed since the verdict was returned:

"Torremaggiore: A Glimpse of Sacco's Birthplace," by Eugene Lyons, in The World Tomorrow for August.

AN OUTLINE OF THE SACCO-VANZETTI CASE.

Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti were arrested on May 5, 1920, the day after their friend Andrea Salsedo was found dead on the side-walk under the 14th-story window of the Department of Justice in New York where he had been illegally confined for eight weeks. Both Sacco and Vanzetti had been active in the defense of Salsedo and his fellow-prisoner Roberto Elia, and when brought to the Brockton, Mass. police station assumed that they were being held in connection with their radical activities.

They learned, however, that the state had prepared against them the more serious charge of participation in a horrible payroll murder and robbery three weeks previous in South Braintree, Mass. Vanzetti was indicted on a supplementary count of attempted robbery in Bridgewater. He was tried and convicted. The jury frankly disregarded the testimony which cleared him of his charge, because the witnesses were "wops" and therefore would "stick together." An appeal was being prepared for Vanzetti when the murder indictment was returned against the two men and all efforts were concentrated upon the new case.

The trial began on May 31 and lasted until July 14. More than 150 witnesses took the stand. The public having followed the evidence through the local press reports, expected an acquittal. The conviction was a sensational surprise.

The essential issue was one of identification and the state failed to make good its case. The one witness who placed Vanzetti on the crime scene was so flagrantly "mistaken" that the prosecution itself asked the jurors to disregard him. Those who "identified" Sacco were without exception so situated during the crime that they could not have observed accurately. Many altered their testimony to suit new situations. Against these were more than a score of trustworthy eye witnesses, who were certain that the defendants were not among them. On other points at issue, such as the gun testimony, the defense also outweighed and refuted the prosecution. Both men established iron-bound alibis.

The unexpected consummation of the trial called out a great protest, as is evident from this leaflet. Every legal recourse will be had. But if justice is to be secured the public must be acquainted with the facts. The publicity and legal campaigns must be financed by popular donations. Will you help? Checks should be sent to:

in the place of a hunted Italian Socialist, keenly aware of what few as yet seem to know, that for several years men like him have not been safe from unwarrantable arrest and severe punishment in our 'free America' not for crime but for their opinions.

"I should suppose that this passage in the judge's charge might have sounded to the jury much like a death sentence."

Mrs. Hannah Teresa Rowley, in a letter to the Boston Herald, August 25:

"... To many, neither socialists nor pacifists, who followed closely the evidence as reported in the Herald, the verdict of 'guilty' must have been entirely unexpected. The alibis presented by these men seemed trustworthy; the witnesses who testified that they were not the bandits seemed at least as truthful and reliable as those who testified against them; the evidence of the bullet, which may have influenced the jury, was refuted in the defence. If this summary is fair, have we a basis for a verdict carrying the death penalty?"

Alexander Doyle, in a letter to the Boston Herald, August 4, 1921:

"... Certainly it was widely published that at least two of three reputable witnesses, among others the Italian consul or vice-consul, testified that one of the condemned men was seen in Boston at or near the hour of the murder; and if that testimony was true, how could the guilt of that prisoner be established beyond a reasonable doubt in the minds of any jury? Especially in view of the fact that so far as published, there was no positive identification by any witness to the contrary."

Excerpt from a news story in The Boston Herald of August 21:

The next speaker, Prof. John L. Hurley of the Suffolk Law School, said that he had become interested in the case through several persons directly concerned in it. He stated that he had followed the various stages of the case and is convinced that the verdict reported against Sacco and Vanzetti was an unfair one and that in all probability it was the result of an "atmosphere" which had been created by the authorities.

Alexander Howat, President, District 14, United Mine Workers of America, Kansas, in a letter to the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, August 5:

"As I have said on more than one occasion, after hearing different statements in connection with the case of Brothers Sacco and Vanzetti, I am fully convinced beyond any question of doubt that they are absolutely innocent of the crime which they are charged with, and I want them to know that I believe in them, and my good wishes are with them."

Dr. Samuel Eliot Morison, Lecturer on History, Harvard University, in a letter to Elizabeth Glendower Evans, July 20:

"I am astounded and grieved at the verdict in the Sacco-Vanzetti case. These men are certainly innocent of the crime for which they were tried. I hear from a journalist friend that almost all the reporters who attended the trial so believe, and that the judge's charge was even more unfair than it seemed in print. Even so, I cannot understand how the jury, especially the wage-earning members, could have been so ignorant, cowardly and cruel as to vote guilty in the face of the evidence.

"I did not contribute to the defense fund, because, having faith in Massachusetts justice, I did not think it necessary. Please accept the enclosed toward the expense of the appeal. Everyone who believes in the principles of liberty and justice on which this republic was founded should do his utmost to save these innocent men from judicial murder."

the commission of the crime and their arrest, Sacco and Vanzetti had been active with others in raising a defense fund for Salcedo.

The Manner of Men They Are

Persons who know Sacco and Vanzetti believe that they are men of fine gifts and of humanitarian sympathies. The former is a skilled shoe worker who had worked for seven years for one employer; during the months preceding his arrest he earned from $70 to $80 a week, and had an account of over $1,500, accumulated month by month in the Savings Bank. Incidents highly creditable to his character were related by members of the firm by which he was employed as they lingered outside the court room, hoping for a chance to bear similar testimony upon the stand. "A man who is in his garden at 4 o'clock in the morning," said one of these gentlemen, "and at the factory at 7 o'clock, and in his garden again after supper and until nine and ten at night, carrying water and raising vegetables beyond his own needs which he would bring to me to give to the poor,—that man is not a 'holdup man.'" Under legal rulings, testimony of this character was not allowed.

Vanzetti is a man of gentleness and dignity. He is of a philosophic turn of mind, and is esteemed by his fellows as a writer and a speaker. He is a lover of Dante and Kropotkin and Tolstoi. Previous to his arrest, he bore a good reputation.

Equal Before The Law?

It was an unfortunate feature of the present case that, where the prosecution had the whole power of the government at its command, the accused were thrown for their defense upon voluntary contributions. Funds ran so low that at one time it would have been impossible to put on further witnesses had not this fact, becoming known, brought in fresh supplies.

Now the defense is forced to appeal anew for funds to carry on the fight. Lovers of Justice may send contributions to

An Appeal for Justice

An appeal is pending in behalf of Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti, convicted of the murder of a paymaster and his guard at South Braintree, Mass., on April 15, 1920. The belief that the verdict was unwarranted by the evidence is held by persons of judgment, who have informed themselves carefully as to the facts of the case.

Identifications

Thirty-five persons took the stand who claimed to have seen the faces of the bandits in the act of shooting, or very shortly before they opened fire, or as they fled down the street in an auto, firing to the right and left as they went. Only one of these witnesses identified Vanzetti, and he claimed he was driving the car, which the District Attorney conceded was driven by a man wholly unlike Vanzetti in appearance. Moreover, this witness had previously disclaimed being able to recognize anyone. Only four identified Sacco, and all of these had previously made contradictory statements; two of them were seriously discredited in other ways, and the other two occupied a viewpoint of great disadvantage and described details which it would seem an impossibility for them to have seen. Eight witnesses were unable to identify anyone; while twenty-two were positive that neither Sacco nor Vanzetti were the men they saw. Several of these had a capital view and made an impression on the stand of great reliability.

Many of the above witnesses had seen pictures of the accused before they attempted an identification, and saw them under conditions that in every way suggested their guilt. Yet even so, only one out of seven made an identification.

The other evidence upon which the Government built its case was equally unsubstantial in character. Some persons who followed the trial expressed surprise that when the weakness of the evidence developed, the judge did not withdraw the case from the jury. An analysis of the evidence is in preparation, and will be supplied upon application to The League for Democratic Control.

Prejudicial Factors

Sacco and Vanzetti carried loaded revolvers when they were arrested. Their own explanation upon this point, if accepted, clears them of criminal intent. And if it is not accepted, while carrying concealed weapons may properly have reflected on their good character and be deserving of punishment, it raises no presumption that three weeks earlier they had committed a murder. Nevertheless, these loaded revolvers can hardly have failed to count against them. While the fact that they had evaded the draft and were known to hold highly unpopular opinions, would make an unprejudiced consideration of their case very difficult with any American jury.

"Conscious Guilt"

It was claimed by Officers Connolly and Spear who made the arrest in a trolley car going into Brockton, that each of the men made a motion as if to draw upon them. This was denied by the accused, who claimed that on the contrary, they had been threatened and otherwise terrorized at the Police Station. But the testimony of the officers figured large in the District Attorney's closing argument as evidence of "conscious guilt" on the part of the accused.

So too, it was argued as evidence of "conscious guilt" that Sacco and Vanzetti had lied in their examination at Brockton after their arrest. But the conditions attending their arrest afford ground for a quite opposite deduction. Sacco and Vanzetti had gone to Brockton, among other reasons, to arrange a meeting for the following Sunday which Vanzetti was to address, at which it was purposed to denounce the imprisonment of a comrade named Salsedo, held for more than two months without legal warrant in the New York Office of the U. S. Department of Justice, and killed two days before by a fall from the fourteenth story of the building. With Salsedo's fate before them, was it not natural, when they were arrested without cause assigned and questioned as radicals, that they should have tried to conceal the names of comrades and to conceal likewise their own perfectly legal but highly imprudent activities?

Is it probable that men would engage a hall and plan to mount a platform in a cause likely to attract attention from the police, if less than three weeks earlier they had committed a murder for plunder in a nearby town in broad daylight, and in the presence of scores of witnesses? Apart from all other evidence, would not the undertaking which they had in hand tend to demolish the "conscious guilt" argument? This view of the case seems never to have gotten into the minds of judge or jury.

Had it been possible to introduce as evidence a copy of the Report of the Illegal Practises of the U. S. Department of Justice, signed by Twelve Lawyers, among them Roscoe Pound, Dean of the Harvard Law School, and to require the judge and the jury, yes, and the prosecuting officers to read it, they would have understood the terror so-called "Reds" were under in the spring of 1920, and the "conscious guilt" argument might have carried less weight.*

"Atmosphere"

When all is said and done, the state of the public mind toward aliens and radicals may well have been a decisive factor. Some of those in closest touch with the trial believe that Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted in advance by "atmosphere."

The Captured Payroll

The murders for which Sacco and Vanzetti were on trial were incidental to a payroll robbery of more than $15,000. The prosecution indicated in opening its case that evidence would be introduced tracing this money. But no such evidence was presented. No unusual supply of money was ascribed to the accused nor to any of their associates, notwithstanding the fact that during the interval between

*Copies of this remarkable document may be obtained from The League for Democratic Control, price 50 cents.

WHY WERE SACCO AND VANZETTI SHOT?

The evidence in the case of Sacco and Vanzetti is so overwhelming that it is almost impossible to understand why the jury found them guilty. The evidence is so clear that it is almost impossible to understand why the jury found them guilty. The evidence is so clear that it is almost impossible to understand why the jury found them guilty.

Conviction was obtained, however, on the strength of circumstantial evidence which came from the testimony of the eye-witnesses of the murders. The circumstantial evidence, that the actions and attitude of the defendants when arrested three weeks after the murders, indicated their guilt.

This was a false interpretation of the facts, and here is a remarkable aspect of the case. Ordinarily in these days prosecutors seek to prove radical affiliations of men accused of crimes. But this prosecution sought to avoid such proof. So the defense had to get in the radical character of the defendants to explain their attitude at the time of arrest.

Evidence was introduced by the defense to prove that Sacco and Vanzetti were opposed to the war of 1917, refused to register and evaded the draft by going to Mexico. That both had been active in big strikes in Massachusetts. That on the night of their arrest, May 5, 1920, they were engaged in carrying out a plan to conceal radical literature, on the advice of a New York attorney. That they and others had been raising money to defend Andrea Salsedo and Roberto Eina, printers illegally imprisoned by the Department of Justice; and that on the previous day they had learned of Salsedo's 14-story plunge to death. These facts made them fearful of prosecution and impeded them to tell their movements as their radical activities might not be disclosed and so they wouldn't have to give the names of any of their friends to the police.

This testimony was pushed aside by the prosecution as being of no import, although it was admitted that at the time of their arrest the defendants were not accused of payroll murders, but were grilled about their political ideas and attitude toward governments.

Many creditable witnesses testified that Sacco was in Boston on April 15, the crime-date, arranging for passports, and that Vanzetti was in Plymouth.

The evidence in the case of Sacco and Vanzetti is so overwhelming that it is almost impossible to understand why the jury found them guilty. The evidence is so clear that it is almost impossible to understand why the jury found them guilty.

That both had been active in big strikes in Massachusetts. That on the night of their arrest, May 5, 1920, they were engaged in carrying out a plan to conceal radical literature, on the advice of a New York attorney. That they and others had been raising money to defend Andrea Salsedo and Roberto Eina, printers illegally imprisoned by the Department of Justice; and that on the previous day they had learned of Salsedo's 14-story plunge to death. These facts made them fearful of prosecution and impeded them to tell their movements as their radical activities might not be disclosed and so they wouldn't have to give the names of any of their friends to the police.

This testimony was pushed aside by the prosecution as being of no import, although it was admitted that at the time of their arrest the defendants were not accused of payroll murders, but were grilled about their political ideas and attitude toward governments.

Many creditable witnesses testified that Sacco was in Boston on April 15, the crime-date, arranging for passports, and that Vanzetti was in Plymouth.

Send your contribution and a list of names of persons who ought to be told about the case!

FACTS DEVELOPED:

While at J. P. McClellan's Office, 65 E. 4th Street, received Unemployment Council circulars, which are in the possession of New York Office. It was also noted that [REDACTED] McClellan's common law wife, was engaged in mimeographing circulars signed "A.L.A. W. D. U. and Italian Defense Committee", which letters are to be sent out to at least fifty organizations or unions, by McClellan. Copies of these are also on file at the New York Office.

While here [REDACTED] spoke to McClellan regarding the securing of a synopsis of the Sacco-Vanzetti Case from Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, so that he can give same to the speakers on November 27th, all over the country. Stamford, Conn. has sent a request for a speaker, and similar requests have been received from other Eastern Cities.

McClellan sent a letter to Elizabeth Gurley Flynn requesting her to send a short synopsis of the Sacco-Vanzetti Case for use of the out of town speakers, and received a letter in answer thereto, explaining that Frank Strong Hamilton is now engaged in writing up the synopsis desired, but has not finished same as yet. She wants 100 copies of the appeal so that she can send them to the unions.

It was also learned that Elizabeth Gurley Flynn was sending out by mail about 100 copies of the minutes of the conference.

Armament Conference.

Dear Sir:

Information has been received by this office to the effect that the circulars announcing the meeting of the aforementioned defense organization on November 25th, will be distributed at 83 East 4th Street, beginning tomorrow, which address is the headquarters of the Workers Defense Office.

Agent [redacted] ^{b7c} advises me that he has learned that efforts are being made by delegates to the conference of the American Labor Alliance held in this city on Monday last, to secure the sanction of that organization to cable various labor organizations throughout Europe, requesting monster demonstrations in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti, to take place beginning Saturday, November 26th and ending Monday, November 28th.

On Sunday next, Marshal Foch is scheduled to appear at St. Patrick's Cathedral, this city, and also at Fordham University. Both of these gatherings will be attended by agents of this office.

Meetings in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti will be held in Stamford, Conn., on November 26th, at Hartford, Conn. on November 27th, and in Newark, N.J. on the last named date. All meetings will be held under the auspices of the Workers League, who will send speakers from this city, and Edward Lindgren, of the Communist Party, will probably be called upon to select those persons who will address the audiences.

READ BY W J W

Dear Sir:

In accordance with instructions issued by the Director to the effect that the Bureau be advised from time to time concerning the activities in the case of SACCO and VANZETTI, the Bureau is advised that on the 12th instant, while Agent W. J. West of this office was at the district court at Jamaica Plain, Mass., appearing in the case of

he was informed by Attorney J. J. McAnarney, one of counsel for the defendants SACCO and VANZETTI, that in his opinion the agitation abroad against officers of the United States might have an influence upon the decision of Judge Webster Thayer in the motion for a new trial, and thought that such agitation hurt his case. Mr. McAnarney, who has been the trial lawyer associated with Attorney F. H. Moore, is one of three brothers who are well known criminal lawyers in this section and who are of excellent reputation.

This is reported for the reason that there have been apparently no demonstrations since November 5th and November 12th, when the hearing on a motion for a new trial was had, which would seem to indicate that the demonstrations were cancelled at least until all legal efforts had been put forth on behalf of the two defendants. In view of the lack of any recent demonstrations, the inference would be that instructions to cease such demonstrations must have emanated from Boston, probably from ALDINO FELICANI and FRANK R. LOPEZ.

Also called at the office of the American Labor Alliance and saw Israel Anter, who asked that assistance be given Mack in connection with some work, which will give a better chance of securing advance information, as well as to keep in touch with the work on this case.

Word was received that the leaflets will not be ready until after Thursday, for the demonstration. Elisabeth Gurley Flynn has sent out publicity to the papers and McClellan will send letters to the organizations.

Dear Mr. Hurley:-

In reference to demonstrations which have been made by sympathizers with the Italian anarchists NICOLA SACCO and BARTOLOMEO Vanzetti against consulates of the United States in various European and South American countries, it is desired to invite your attention to a newspaper article which appeared in "The NOVIORIAN", of Boston, under date of September 1, 1921, stating, in part, as follows:

"In Rome, Italy, there has been constituted a committee composed of anarchists, anarcho-communists, socialists, members of the Italian Chamber of Labor, and the Italian Federal Chamber of Labor to discuss what action the Italian proletariat shall take toward the sentence rendered in the Sacco-Vanzetti case. Members of that committee are: FERRARIS, GROIA, ROSSI, BOCHICCHIO, PORTUATI, TOSONI, BRINGENTI, and MORARA. The committee, it is said, will develop an extensive agitation amongst all the anarchist groups, socialist branches and other labor organizations to protest against the verdict rendered in the Sacco-Vanzetti case."

Dear Sir:-

It has been noted that there have been numerous reports alleging various dates on which demonstrations are to be staged in behalf of SACCO and VANZETTI. I am just in receipt of information to the effect that under date of November 3rd, 1921 ELMER T. ALLISON, secretary of the American Labor Alliance, has issued a call to the Workers' Defense Union, the Italian Defense Committee, the Irish-American Labor League, and other workers' organizations, to hold a nation-wide demonstration for SACCO and VANZETTI on November 27th, or as near that date as possible. It is also rumored that the radicals desired to have as large a demonstration as possible in Washington, D. C. about that time for the purpose of impressing the delegates to the Armaments Limitation Conference with their cause.

My dear Mr. Burns:

All features of the SLOAN-VINCENTI matter have been covered as far as possible by this Bureau. In fact so much time has been used by agents and myself on the outside that we have had little time to make complete reports but have tried to keep you advised promptly of any important movement on the part of subject's friends.

It is our opinion that there will be no overt act committed by the co-defendants of SLOAN and VINCENTI while the petition for a new trial is pending. It would be the worst kind of judgment on their part to start anything before Judge Thayer renders his decision for any such action would not adversely upon the decision. Should the Judge deny their petition, then it would be well to keep the closest watch on their every movement. This will be done.

Enclosed for you today complete report on the "Discovery of Fifty-seven boxes of Dynamite from the Forest Hills Cemetery and W. W. Barry's house, Roslindale, Mass."

I am also enclosing clipping from the Boston Daily Globe of November 9, 1921, in connection with the new motion in this case which is self-explanatory.

"Nov. 8th I attended an Italian Wobbler meeting at North Beach; they call themselves the SACCO & VANZETTI UNIT. English and Italian speakers stated that there was no justice for a poor man in the U. S. They spoke of the many 'workers' railroaded to prison and gallows or the electric chair. Now I can't give you every word that was said, but to put it in short, they are looking for explosives. If SACCO and VANZETTI are electrocuted, on that day they will start a reign of terror all over the United States. There are a lot of quarry workers and miners among the bunch who are going to furnish the powder.

"The Oakland wobblers were strongly represented at this meeting and promised to aid the Dagoes.

"This is what CALVERT or GAYLORD (Oakland wobblers) said in his speech: 'Let us join hands with our Italian Comrades- we have one cause, etc. Look at the six boys just sent to San Quentin. The only way to retaliate for us, is to kill those instrumental in their arrest and conviction like [redacted] the headmogsuls of the Merchants and Manufacturers, Chamber of Commerce and so forth.'

"The collection so far for the SACCO-VANZETTI

In Re: Sacco-Vanzetti and Protection of Foreign Representatives Limitation of Armament Conference.

Dear Sir:

I am attaching a circular distributed today in this city, announcing the meeting in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti, at the Central Opera House, 205 East 67th Street, on Friday, November 25th.

A mass meeting is scheduled to be held tonight under the auspices of the Socialist Party, Sixth Assembly District, Brooklyn, at the Brooklyn Casino, 790 Broadway, and said meeting, which is to be held in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti, will be addressed by Alderman Vladeck, Joseph A. Whitehorn and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn.

I am also attaching the minutes of the Sacco and Vanzetti Demonstration Conference referred to in my previous letters as being held in this city on November 14th at 250 West 25th Street. Also, please find copy of a circular issued by the American Labor Alliance, concerning the demonstration to be held at the Central Opera House on Friday, November 25th. These circulars were originally in the hands of J. P. McClellan, who is said to have mimeographed same for the American Labor Alliance. Copies of these were sent out to at least fifty organizations or unions.

It is also reported that Lindgren while in conversation with McClellan yesterday, requested that he, McClellan, secure a synopsis of the Sacco-Vanzetti Case from Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, so that he can furnish same to speakers all over the country.

JAN 20 1922

The Stamford, Connecticut meeting scheduled for November 26th, will be under the auspices of the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, and a request has been made of Elizabeth Gurley Flynn for a speaker at that city.

61-126-378

It appears that Frank Strong Hamilton is now engaged in writing up a synopsis of the Sacco-Vanzetti Case, and upon completion of same will turn it over to Miss Flynn, who will have one hundred copies made to be sent to various organizations.

Concerning the financial backing of the proposed demonstration at the Central Opera House, I am informed by the Intelligence Division that Elizabeth Gurley Flynn is receiving the necessary monies directly from the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee at Boston, Mass., therefore it is quite evident that Feliciani is behind the affair, and it is expected that the various radical organizations participating therein, will make contributions so that Feliciani will be reimbursed for the expenditures made.

Attended meeting at 790 Broadway, Brooklyn, which was opened at 9 P.M. , with about 150 people in attendance. Fruchter acted as chairman, and during the course of his speech explained he had never met Sacco or Vanzetti or been in communication with them, but he learned that they were agitators and class conscious workers, and when they said they were innocent of the crime he, Fruchter, knew that they were framed up, because it is the way of the capitalist class to get rid of any class conscious worker who may be active in the movement.

 He then introduced Elizabeth Gurley Flynn , who explained that the American working class has already heard the voices of the European workers in France, Italy, England, Sweden and Russia, and should now hold protest meetings the same as the European workers have done. She charged that they are being framed up, just as the capitalist courts have endeavored to frame Haywood, Nivier, Pettibone, Tom Mooney and hundreds of others. She explained these meetings are being held to arouse the American working class to action, and to send a delegation to Washington, D.C. to picket the Disarmament Conference and carry banners with inscriptions reading that France, Italy, England and the other European countries have already liberated their political prisoners, and asking when the U. S. Government will do likewise. She appealed for aid in connection with the Central Opera House meeting on November 25th, and asked all present to attend same, so as to cause an overflow crowd, which would cause those not able to enter to hold a demonstration.

One Kangh or Kaghn, was the next speaker, and spoke in the Jewish language, and a collection was taken up.

J. A. Whitecorn then spoke, and mentioned the names of Tom Mooney and the Haymarket affair, and explained that Sacco and Vanzetti are victims of the frame up system, the same as those who were hung in 1888. He stated they should start a mass movement and protest, politically, economically and otherwise, for the liberation of all political prisoners, to pull down the jail doors and liberate them. He said the workers of today should organize a movement and do just as the workers did when Haywood, Moier, Pettibone and Tom Mooney were in danger, and to raise their voices and protest until they free the comrades.

The meeting was adjourned about 11 P.M.. About 500 copies of the circular or pamphlet entitled "Are They Doomed", were sold.

 Do you know that the Capitalist class is detirned to Electrute comrade Sacco and Vanzetti because they dared to organize the American Workers and agitate against the present system?

He attended Public School in the East side of New York and during his brief career he has written for liberal publications....."

.....As far back as last November, Lyons was in Rome. It was on the basis of his report that two members of the Chamber of Deputies spoke on the case. Lyons is 25, slender, dark haired, with the uncertainty of movement of immaturity. A slight mustache struggles upon his upper lip. He writes well, speaks several languages fluently, apparently reads voraciously - a well educated, well-mannered youth"

The demonstration will be held in the Central Opera House, 67th Street, between 2nd and 3rd Avenues, this city. Cablegrams were sent to every Communist headquarters in European cities to hold a Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration on November 25, 26th and 27th. "that the trial at which SACCO and VANZETTI, were found guilty of murder was not fair, since government witnesses had perjured themselves and the jury had been unfairly slant selected; that the defense in this case had presented witnesses to prove that SACCO and VANZETTI at the time the crime was committed, were elsewhere." There was not much activity at this conference which was supposed to have been attended by delegates of unions and other workmen's councils, who were in sympathy with SACCO and VANZETTI. The meeting broke up after considerable time was spent in drawing an outline of a plan of sympathy, but nothing definite was arrived at, and it was agreed that another conference would take place in a short time, at which time plans would be drawn up for a public mass meeting in behalf of SACCO and VANZETTI. During the deliberations of this conference Agent observed several automobiles standing outside of this building, and in the grounds of the LABOR EDUCATIONAL ALLIANCE. In Re: Sacco-Vanzetti-Protection of Foreign Representatives-Limitation of Armament Conference.

Dear Sir:

I am attaching herewith, clippings from the New York World, for Thursday, November 24th, and today, concerning the Sacco-Vanzetti Case.

I am also attaching a second copy of the pamphlet issued by the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, Box 37, Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.

Under date of November 22d, the Boston Office of Bureau advised that the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee of Boston had mailed a Special Delivery package believed to contain literature, to the American Labor Alliance at 201 West 13th Street, this city.
 Investigation made shows that the package in question contained copies of the pamphlet attached to this letter and mentioned above.

^{b2} [redacted] in conversation with ^{b7c} [redacted], a member of the I. W. W., Communist Party, American Labor Alliance, Workers League, and the Italian Defense Committee, and who has credentials as a representative of the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, stated confidentially that in his opinion both Sacco and Vanzetti would go to the electric chair and that within a short time the whole matter would be forgotten.

^{b7c} [redacted] I have directed a number of agents to report to Agent [redacted] this evening, at the Central Opera House, for the purpose of attending the monster demonstration planned in behalf of the two subjects, and you will be advised promptly as to what transpires.

On Thanksgiving Day the Italian Defense Committee held an entertainment and dance at the New Lyceum Hall, this city, which dance was attended by about two hundred persons. Those present were addressed by Carlo Tresca and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, who reminded them that in the midst of their enjoyment they should remember their one hundred and fifty political prisoners now in jail and especially Sacco and Vanzetti.

I desire to call your attention to the fact that
